PRESSINFO

Afentoula Razeli - one of the most popular voices of her generation - about herself:

„Well, I was born in Serres , in April. My family, great voices all of them, elegant and with much passion and revels in the 60's. My father played a little mandolin. Someone taught him during his exile in Makronisos. Oh, he played the harmonica as well. Tough times, but then there was hope, as the great spirits and the souls of poets, composers and other artists revived our souls. Manos , Mikis , Loizos , Gatsos , Seferis, Elytis, so special each one of them. Singing was part of our daily lives. I sang before I could speak. I was meant for it I think. I grew up listening to the voices of Mosholiou and Bithikotsis, and the songs of Greek and foreign groups of the time. Among other things.“

VITA

Afentoula Razeli, born in Serres, Greece, is one of the most popular singers of her generation. She studied pedagogy and did postgraduate studies in child psychology and also studied at the National Conservatory of Athens, in the School of Modern Greek Song. She has collaborated with acclaimed artists from the School of Rebetiko and other famous composers and singers. She has performed songs that were worshiped and established her among the genuine popular voices of her generation. She gave many performances on the State Public Television. She gives concerts all over Greece and abroad singing Rebetiko (Tsitsanis, Papaioannou) and songs of modern artists (Hadjidakis, Theodorakis). An important fact of her career are the concerts in June 2013, in Switzerland, where she thrilled and touched the audience as stated.
